REFERRALS & SUPPORT

Eagle Aid utilizes a systematic process of referrals and general assessments which makes it possible for the team to determine which students are having problems and to direct them to community organizations for help. The team of school personnel has been specially trained at an extensive program conducted by the Lincoln Intermediate Unit #12, and they are qualified to assist high-risk students who are referred to their team.

Referrals may be made by teachers, parents, or other students. Students may also refer themselves to the team. Any student who violates the Drug and Alcohol Policy of Bermudian Springs School District is immediately referred to Eagle Aid.

PURPOSE

High school is a period of time during which students are presented with greater responsibility. Because of expanding independence at home, developing social relationships, obligations at work, commitment to extracurricular activities, and academic challenges, students must confront many trials. Although most students can successfully deal with the pressures of high school, many resort to drugs and alcohol as an escape; others may become discouraged and can develop depression.

Students who have difficulty handling the responsibilities presented to them during high school need support, encouragement, and understanding. This assistance is provided through Eagle Aid, the Bermudian Springs High School Student Assistance Program.

THE EAGLE AID TEAM MEMBERS

Eagle Aid is a team of teachers, administrators, and representatives from area Mental Health/Drug and Alcohol agencies who identify high-risk students who are having school-related problems because of alcohol and drug use. The program is also a method for the identification, intervention, and referral of teenage students who are believed to be at risk of suicide and for students with signs of depression.
